The Transfiguration

In order for an event in Jesus' life to be a mystery, it is not enough, however, that "something is accomplished in Christ." The event must also have a salvific significance for his whole body in that it is a pattern and an effective cause for the members of the Church...

The Church celebrates not only Christ's Transfiguration but her own as well.

What transfiguration do I mean? Above all, the eschatological transfiguration that will happen at the end of time, when the Lord Jesus, as the Apostle Paul says, will transform the body of our humiliation so that it may be conformed to the body of his glory (Phil 3:21). According to Proclus of Constantinople, "Christ was transfigured to show us the future transfiguration of our nature and his second coming." "This concept is also present in the West. The Transfiguration, writes Saint Leo the Great, occurred 'so that it [the Church] might know with what sort of exchange the whole body of Christ was to be given, and that the members might promise to themselves a sharing in the honor of the one who had shone as their Head."

Even in antiquity there were some who saw not only our final transformation but also that of the whole cosmos prefigured in the Transfiguration. On Tabor, says Abastastius of Sinai, Christ "transfigured all creation into his image and recreated it in an even more sublime way"...

It is through contemplation that we can enter into the mystery of the Transfiguration here and now, make it ours, and participate in it.

Father Raniero Cantalamessa, O.F.M. CAP.

What is "right" and "wrong"? Is what's right for you right for me? Is there a right and wrong for everyone, all the time?

These are difficult questions to discuss in our culture. We live in a society that supports the opinion that each person should make up his or her own morality—that there is no moral truth that applies to everyone. Many of us have been affected by the relativistic outlook that pervades the modern world. Maybe some of us wonder whether there really is an absolute right and wrong for everyone. Or maybe we accept that there is a moral standard for all, but we don't know how to explain our moral convictions in a convincing way. Maybe some of us are afraid of saying something is immoral because we're afraid of offending others or of being labeled intolerant. How do we talk about morality in a relativistic world?

In this small group study program featuring Edward Sri, we'll explore the classical view of morality and find that it's not merely a set of guiding principles for theoretical situations—it is an entire way of life.
